XXV. Concluding remarks - - -	ccxxii	xIII. Whether we suppose the volitions of moral Agents to be connected with any thing antecedent, or not, yet they must be necessary in such a sense as to overthrow Arminian Liberty - - -	40
Farewell Sermon preached at Northampton - - -	ccxl	PART III. Wherein is inquired, whether any such Liberty of Will as Arminians hold, be necessary to Moral Agency, Virtue and Vice, Praise and Dispraise, &c. - -	41
III. APPENDIX TO MEMOIRS.		SECT. I. God's moral Excellency necessary, yet virtuous and praise-worthy - - -	ib.
No. I. Account of the ancestry of Jonathan Edwards - -	ccl	II. The Acts of the Will of the human soul of Jesus Christ, necessarily holy, yet truly virtuous, praise-worthy, rewardable, &c. - - -	42
II. Particulars as to the Life and Death of Mr. Richard Edwards, the grandfather of Jonathan Edwards - -	ccliii	III. The case of such as are given up of God to sin, and of fallen man in general, proves moral Necessity and Inability to be consistent with Blameworthiness - -	46
III. Account of the Children of Timothy and Esther Edwards - - -	cclvi	IV. Command and Obligation to Obedience, consistent with moral Inability to obey - - -	47
IV. Remarks in Mental Philosophy. The Mind - -	ib.	V. That Sincerity of Desires and Endeavours, which is supposed to excuse in the non-performance of things in themselves good, particularly considered - -	51
V. Family and Descendants of President Edwards - -	cclxxiv	VI. Liberty of Indifference, not only not necessary to Virtue, but utterly inconsistent with it; and all, either virtuous or vicious habits or inclinations, inconsistent with Arminian notions of Liberty and moral Agency -	53
VI. Catalogue of President Edwards's Works, heretofore published - - -	cclxxvi	VII. Arminian notions of moral Agency inconsistent with all influence of Motive and Inducement, in either virtuous or vicious actions - - -	55
IV. A CAREFUL AND STRICT INQUIRY INTO THE PREVAILING NOTIONS OF THE FREEDOM OF WILL.		PART IV. Wherein the chief grounds of the reasonings of Arminians, in support and defence of the fore-mentioned notions of Liberty, Moral Agency, &c. and against the opposite doctrine, are considered - - -	57
Preface - - -	3	SECT. I. The Essence of the virtue and vice of dispositions of the heart, and acts of the Will, lies not in their Cause, but their Nature - - -	ib.
PART I. Wherein are explained and stated various Terms and things belonging to the subject of the ensuing Discourse - - -	4	II. The Falseness and Inconsistence of that metaphysical notion of Action, and Agency, which seems to be generally entertained by the defenders of the Arminian Doctrine concerning Liberty, moral Agency, &c. -	60
SECT. I. Concerning the Nature of the Will - - -	ib.	III. The reasons why some think it contrary to common Sense, to suppose those things which are necessary to be worthy of either Praise or Blame - - -	63
II. Concerning the Determination of the Will - - -	5	IV. It is agreeable to common sense, and the natural notions of mankind, to suppose moral Necessity to be consistent with Praise and Blame, Reward and Punishment -	65
III. Concerning the meaning of the terms, Necessity, Impossibility, Inability, &c. and of Contingence - -	8	V. Objections, that this scheme of Necessity renders all Means and Endeavours for avoiding Sin, or obtaining Virtue and Holiness, vain, and to no purpose; and that it makes men no more than mere machines, in affairs of morality and religion, answered - - -	67
IV. Of the distinction of natural and moral Necessity, and Inability - - -	10	VI. Concerning that objection against the doctrine which has been maintained, that it agrees with the Stoical doctrine of Fate, and the opinions of Mr. Hobbes -	69
V. Concerning the notion of Liberty, and of moral Agency -	11	VII. Concerning the Necessity of the Divine Will - -	ib.
PART II. Wherein it is considered, whether there is or can be any such sort of Freedom of Will, as that wherein Arminians place the essence of the Liberty of all Moral Agents; and whether any such thing ever was or can be conceived of - - -	13	VIII. Some further objections against the moral Necessity of God's Volitions considered - - -	72
SECT. I. Showing the manifest inconsistency of the Arminian notion of Liberty of Will, consisting in the Will's self-determining Power - - -	ib.	IX. Concerning that objection against the doctrine which has been maintained, that it makes God the Author of Sin -	75
II. Several supposed ways of evading the foregoing reasoning, considered - - -	14	x. Concerning sin's first Entrance into the world - -	80
III. Whether any Event whatsoever, and Volition in particular, can come to pass without a Cause of its existence -	15	xi. Of a supposed Inconsistence between these principles and God's moral character - - -	82
IV. Whether Volition can arise without a Cause, through the activity of the nature of the soul - - -	17	xII. Of a supposed tendency of these principles to Atheism and Licentiousness - - -	84
V. Showing, that if the things asserted in these Evasions should be supposed to be true, they are altogether impertinent, and cannot help the cause of Arminian Liberty; and how, this being the state of the case, Arminian writers are obliged to talk inconsistently - - -	18	xIII. Concerning that objection against the reasoning, by which the Calvinistic doctrine is supposed, that it is metaphysical and abstruse - - -	85
VI. Concerning the Will determining in things which are perfectly indifferent in the view of the mind - -	19	xIV. The Conclusion - - -	86
VII. Concerning the notion of Liberty of Will, consisting in Indifference - - -	21	APPENDIX.
VIII. Concerning the supposed Liberty of the Will, as opposite to all Necessity - - -	23	xv. Containing Remarks on the Essays on the Principles of Morality and Natural Religion, in a Letter to a Minister of the Church of Scotland - - -	89
IX. Of the Connexion of the Acts of the Will with the Dictates of the Understanding - - -	24
